THE BEECHER SCANDAL. A New York Sunday paper prints an alleged summary of the report of the Beecher investigating committee, which reviews the evidence in the case and concludes with the finding that Henry Ward Beecher is entirely guiltless of the charges brought against him. It is stated, however, that the committee wish to embrace the statement of Moulton in their report, and that he has been invited to submit ... examination next Wednesday.

Moulton is reported as having thrown off his ... and ... character and to have ... Mr. Beecher to a reporter as ... a ... A member ... committee informed an ... reporter ... only a few days before his last statement Moulton had been negotiating with Beecher ... say nothing about the money affair and he would make no statement, which Beecher ...

Tilton and Moulton were together Saturday ... preparing documents preparatory to further ... and it is given out that Moulton has other documents in reserve.

Mr. Shearman, counsel for Beecher, says there is nothing in Moulton's statement that will affect the case in any way.

Mr. Beecher preached to a large audience at the Twin Mountain House on Sunday the ... gathering from miles around. He made no allusion to his troubles.

The ... story of the adopted girl, Bessie Turner has been published and presents a sickening picture of Tilton's brutality and ... and the persecutions to which his ... spirited wife was subjected.

... B. Halliday repeats his explicit statement that in Nov. 2d, 1872, in the library of Moulton's house, the latter said to him these exact words: "I know as much about this affair as any man knows, and I know that Mr. Beecher is guiltless." He added: "Do you suppose, if I thought Mr. Beecher a bad man I would have him sit at my table with my wife as a guest, as he frequently ...?"

The Wiscasset Oracle, repeating a suggestion of the Presque Isle Sunrise, remarks: "If Mr. Hamlin is returned to the Senate for six years more, at the close of the term it will make thirty three years of service of the State at Washington. A longer term than any other man has served any State during our national existence! And that, too, without a breath of suspicion being attached to him to tarnish his good name or fair fame."

COMPLIMENT FROM AN OPPONENT. An exchange, referring to Alexander H. Stephens as having been familiar with all the Speakers since James K. Polk and having served under Winthrop, Cobb and Banks, says he remarked to a friend during the late session of Congress that "Speaker Blaine was more prompt, efficient, and energetic in the despatch of business, and possessed a more thorough knowledge of the complicated rules of the House, than any one he had ever seen in the Chair."

OBITUARY. The many friends of Col. E. K. Harding, of Bath, long known in military and business circles throughout the State, will feel a deep regret at the sad announcement of his death on Friday morning, after a severe and protracted illness. Col. Harding will be remembered by the rank and file of the old militia companies as the first commander of the Bath City Greys, which became, under his discipline, one of the best drilled organizations in the State. During the war of the rebellion he served for a time under Adjutant General Hodsdon as Assistant Quartermaster General, rendering efficient service. His health has been feeble for a number of years and for some time past there had been little hope of his recovery. He was a gentleman of fine presence, genial manner and kindly impulses, and will be sincerely mourned by a wide circle of friends. Deceased was fifty eight years of age and leaves a widow and several children.

PISCATAQUIS REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. A mail report from Dover announces the proceedings of the Piscataquis County Republican Convention, with the ticket as given in yesterday's issue. The occasion was enlivened by an able address by Llewellyn Powers, Esq., of Houlton, on the political issues of the day and the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That the principles declared in the resolutions of the last Republican State Convention at Augusta meet, in a clear and satisfactory manner the issues of the day, and that we adopt them as the sentiment of this Convention.

Resolved, That we cordially endorse the course pursued by the Hon. Sam'l F. Hersey, our Representative in Congress, and that we will use all honorable means to secure his re-election.

Resolved, That we have the fullest confidence in the ability and integrity of the nominees of this Convention, and that we pledge to each and all our undivided support.

Some of the papers find an inconsistency in Mr. Beecher's denunciation of Moulton and the fact that he addressed him a very friendly note on the Fourth of July. It is to be remembered that Mr. Beecher asserts that he had the most implicit faith in Moulton up to a recent date, and that it was not until the 4th of August, when Moulton refused to let him see letters which it proves that he had "every right to demand" that he suspected foul play and arraigned Moulton for his treachery in the letter imperatively commanding the production of the documents.

The Concord, N. H. Monitor believes that the Republican party has yet a great future of usefulness and success before it. "It was the love of the great principles of liberty and statesmanship which called the Republican organization into being and gave it power to inspire and guide its adherents, so long will harmony of action pervade its rank and file and lofty patriotism bear its banners to victory."

The announcement that Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was to preach at the Twin Mountain House New Hampshire Sunday drew an audience of twelve hundred people, many of whom came in by stage from towns in the vicinity. A temporary pulpit was erected in the parlor and the usual services held. His sermon was taken from 2d Timothy, chap. II, part of 19th verse—"Nevertheless the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are His." The discourse was general, no allusion being made to the scandal. It lasted an hour and a quarter.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe thus closes a long and interesting review of the Beecher Tilton case in the Boston Journal:

"What further word is there for these men whom we have reluctantly set over against each other in these columns? For Mr. Beecher, the beatitudes of his Master, dearest when all else fails, an enviable fortress when the world crumbles. For Mr. Tilton, the reminder that nothing is more honorable in a fallible being than repentance and amendment. The grace of God, in which he once believed, is the only agency that can save him now. To the Master's fold he can return with loving welcome. Outside of it, he will only wander and waste himself more and more pitiably. Let him fling aside his wicked mask, abdicate his foolish assumptions, and not die without at least a brave effort to retrieve his errors, and attain some esteem in the minds of just people."

A TRIBUTE TO A NOBLE WIFE. A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune pays the following warm tribute to one who has borne herself most nobly through the severest trials: "Our daily journals have been filled with both praise and blame of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, but which among them has noticed the rare devotion and courage of his noble wife, who, believing her husband to be true, has stood faithfully by him through the storm, and proved herself the true type of wifehood for all time to come? A weak woman might have been moved from her steadfastness of devotion by all this pressure of suspicion, conspiracy and falsehood; but she has stood firm as a rock, and well deserved the commendation, "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life. Her children arise up and call her blessed, her husband also, and he praises her." What true wife in the land could read without a thrill of pleasure and a rush of tears that grand sentence in her husband's testimony "His (Tilton's) affairs at home did not promise that sympathy and strength which makes one's house, as mine has been, in times of adversity, a refuge from the storm and a tower of defense." And what could be more touching than her midnight words, written from the depths of a full heart, too glad, too thankful, too happy for sleep! Though I have no personal acquaintance with Mr. Beecher or herself, and no previous predilection in their favor, I say from my heart and believe every true woman will join with me in the exclamation, "God bless her and make her long a blessing to her husband."

The Boston Globe says: "There is no mistaking the hand that revised Mr. Moulton's statements. The traces are distinctly visible here and there. For instance, the slight comment on Thomas K. Beecher's reply to Mrs. Hooker's letter—"the thought of a good man as to the value of testimony in this case," could only have originated with the Massachusetts statesman who has such a fondness for fortifying his position by an appeal to all that is good."

THE TILTON-BEECHER LAWSUIT. Mr. Shearman, counsel for Mr. Beecher, said on Saturday that when the proper time came such a defence to Tilton's suit would be entered and made as would surely vindicate Beecher in the eyes of the people and before the law. Under no circumstances would Mr. Beecher return to town before October, as Shearman was fully authorized to act for him in every way. The answer to Tilton's complaint would be sent, he thought, this week. It was now being verified, and he was busily occupied getting the evidence together so as to have everything in readiness for the trial. Tilton said on Saturday that he intended making a statement, but he did not see that that there was any immediate hurry for it now that Moulton had spoken. It might possibly be ready to be printed by the end of this week. He said that in it many of the topics referred to and the charges made by Beecher would be alluded to and refuted.

The Boston Advertiser, which for some time opposed the nomination of Mr. Talbot for Governor of Massachusetts, gives evidence in a recent article of a modification of its views, saying:

We wish to be distinctly understood as raising no personal issue against the Lieutenant-Governor. He is one of many candidates whom we should support cordially if the Convention in its good judgment should make him its representative. He has the confidence of all who know him, without regard to his views or theirs on the liquor question. If he should be nominated he would be entitled to the support of all who think it is more important that the Republicans of Massachusetts should maintain their influence in the State and the nation than that either prohibition or license should obtain a nominal victory. And if he should be elected we have no doubt that he would be an acceptable and popular Governor, aside from the complications in which his views on this subject would be certain to involve him.

The Winthrop

WROUGHT IRON FURNACE.

Simple and Durable in its Construction. As Easily Managed as a Parlor Stove. Large Radiation. Entire Freedom from Coal and Dust. Does not heat the Cellar.

Manufactured by DIGHTON FURNACE CO.

In the construction of the Winthrop Hot Air Furnace it has been made a study to avoid the difficulties and annoyances too often found in Furnaces. Pure warm air, free from gas and dust, is the great desideratum sought. Without enlarging upon the important matter of warming and ventilating houses, about which so much has been written of late we desire to call your attention to the New Wrought Iron Winthrop Heater, as possessing the requisites to a healthful and economical apparatus.

The base and fire pot of the Winthrop, is made of heavy cast iron, the fire pot lined with brick, so that the current of cold air as it comes in from the base does not come in contact with red hot plates, destroying its vitality, but is delivered into the hot air chamber pure and healthful.

The Radiator is made of the best Wrought Iron, as thoroughly riveted as a steam boiler, making the escape of gas and dust an impossibility, thus securing what cannot be guaranteed by any Cast Iron Furnace, with its many flues and joints, a healthful atmosphere.

The reversible flue insures the even distribution of heat, for the whole furnace, leaving no part useless, thus making it the most powerful heater in the market. Another distinguishing feature of the Winthrop is the ease with which the flues can be cleaned out. This has been a serious difficulty with most furnaces, but has been entirely overcome in the Winthrop. The accumulation of soot and ashes in the flues can be thoroughly removed in a few minutes. The Winthrop has been thoroughly tested, and we invite all in want of a superior heating apparatus to an examination of its merits.

INDIANA

MAMMOTH CARRIAGE FACTORY BURNED —Loss $800,000

SOUTH BEND Aug 24 At half past four o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the paint rooms of the mammoth wagon factory of Studebaker Brothers. These works were erected immediately after the burning of their smaller shop in June, 1872. The flames spread rapidly, and owing to the great size of the buildings, the fire department was unable to get the fire under immediate control. The firemen finally turned their attention to the place where the building joined the one erected four years ago, and here stopped the fire. The latter building contained the greater portion of the machinery which was all removed and saved from damage from water. The heat was so intense that the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern passenger depots were in imminent danger. Trains were delayed four hours. Owing to the absence of wind the flames were prevented from spreading to the buildings in the immediate vicinity The works contained over 3,000 finished wagons besides vast quantities of stock in process of manufacture. Loss $800,000; insurance as far as yet known is $125,000

THEORY OF THE FIRE.

The theory of the cause of the fire is spontaneous combustion, though some say it was the work of an incendiary The Studebaker Co employed upwards of three hundred hands who are thrown out of work temporarily The carriage works of the same company in another part of the city are all right. A call is issued for a meeting this evening for the expression of public sympathy for the sufferers

WASHINGTON

SPAIN DEMANDS INDEMNITY FOR ALLEGED WRONGS—OUR GOVERNMENT'S REPLY

WASHINGTON Aug 24 It is ascertained from a reliable source that Spain, instead of carrying into effect the understanding of the Feb [illegible] protocol namely, to investigate the conduct of those of its authorities who have infringed upon Spanish laws and treaty obligations and to punish those who may have offended has made a demand for indemnity in the affair of the Virginius and for other alleged wrongs suffered by Spain owing to filibustering expeditions fitted out in this country and landing or attempting to land men and munitions of war on the Spanish American coast. To this demand our Government has replied in firm but courteous terms, insisting the untenableness of the position of the Spanish Government, and reminding it of the remissness or inexcusable delay in making reparation for wrongs suffered by American citizens in person, and property. The latest information from Minister Cushing is that he is still pressing our demands on Spain It seems certain that the clause in the protocol providing that reciprocal reclamations shall be the subject of consideration between the two Governments will not end satisfactorily, in which case it will be the subject of arbitration as per agreement, providing that the constitutional assent of the Senate of the United States shall be given to it.

SUICIDE AT MONTVILLE On Thursday last Mr Luthe Gregory of Montville found in his pasture the body of James Whitten, a pauper who left the town farm the first of June and never returned. Appearances indicated that he hung himself to a small tree with a cotton handkerchief, which broke soon after and allowed his body to fall the ground. The body was so far advanced in decomposition that the head had become separated and rolled off He had relatives in the town of Enfield, and when he went away in June said he was going to visit them and should never return.

EXCURSION TO SEBEC LAKE Messrs E A Brackett and Asa French, Commissioners of Fisheries of Massachusetts, Messrs. Hudson, Pike and Bills, the Connecticut Commissioners, Judge Stumpus, State Auditor Endicott and T S Harlow, Esq., of Massachusetts, Messrs Stillwell and Stanley, Fish Commissioners of this State, and Dr. Brown of this city will to day start with Mr H L Leonard to visit the fish breeding works at Sebec Lake under his superintendence. Gov Talbot of Massachusetts, and Prof Baird of the U S Fish Commission, are expected to arrive the last of the week to join the party, who will undoubtedly enjoy their excursion vastly and have some rare sport in the "angler's paradise" to which they are bound.

EXCURSION Senator Hamlin, Secretary Delano of the Interior Department Hon Lagere Hale, Hon T B Reed of Portland, Gen Davis Tilson, Stanley T. Pullen, Esq., of the Portland Press, Stanley Plummer, Esq., confidential clerk to Secretary Delano, Francis Cobb Esq., Hon N A Farwell, Hon George Kimball, Clarence Hale, Esq., of Portland, J H Bowdell, Esq., John S Case, Esq., Capt Abbey of the Revenue Cutter Dobbin, Col E R Spear, Supt Coombs of the Knox & Lincoln Railroad, Hon. Moses Webster and others, made an excursion on the steamer Hurricane from Rockland to Hurricane Island, Friday, to inspect the extensive granite quarries there, under the superintendence of Gen Tilson. After a pleasant visit they took the steamer Clara Clarita for Carver's Harbor, where they dined, and under guidance of Mr Bodwell examined the quarries and workshops of the Bodwell Granite Company On Saturday they returned to Rockland and thence went on the steamer Fire Fly to Dix Island, where most of the party spent the Sabbath

OFF FOR PORTLAND The members of Katahdin Encampment and Penobscot and Oriental Lodges met at their hall in Exchange block yesterday morning at half past six o'clock, donned uniforms and regalia, and fifteen minutes later formed in line, and, preceded by the Bangor Cornet Band, marched down Exchange st. to the depot, where they received the forty or more brethren from Dover, Foxcroft and Oldtown who came down on the morning train The line was again formed and marched through Exchange, Harlow, Central, Main and Union streets to the steamboat wharf, where they embarked on the good steamer City of Richmond for Portland. The procession as it marched through the streets presented a fine appearance, the elegant Encampment uniforms of purple, black and gold making the line a brilliant spectacle, while the neat and tasteful caps and regalia of the Lodges added much to the effect of the display The excursionists had a lovely day for the trip and arrived safely last evening They will be a credit to our city in the grand procession at the Odd Fellows' celebration in Portland to day.

THEATRE There was an excellent audience in Norombega Hall last evening to witness the performance of "The New Magdalen" by Messrs Nannary & McDowell's company, and the frequency and unmistakable heartiness of the applause bestowed throughout the evening proved that the play was thoroughly enjoyed Miss LeClercq, who made her first appearance here, was warmly greeted and her superb acting in the difficult and exacting role of "Mercy Merrick" showed the wisdom of Wilkie Collins in intrusting the dramatic version of his great novel into her hands She held the closest attention of the audience from first to last, and even the play of her mobile features was applauded. Miss Rachel Noah, as "Grace Roseberry," justly came in for a large share of the honors, and acted with a spirit and just appreciation of the character that cannot be too highly commended. Mrs. Young made a capital "Lady Janet" Mr Cotter's personation of "Julian Gray" showed much talent and careful study, and the same may be said of Mr McDowell's "Horace Holmcroft." The other members of the company who appeared, rendered an excellent support, and altogether the drama was presented with a completeness and attention to detail too rarely seen here, and therefore to be commended.

To-night Miss LeClercq will appear in her great personation of "Mary Warner," supported by Mr Nell Warner as "George Warner" The bill is a strong one, and will undoubtedly draw a full house.

MUSTER NOTES The tents to be used at the State Muster are to come from Boston, and the State pays $400 for their use They will be pitched and the grounds laid out in good order for the troops before they arrive, so that there will be no delay in going into camp

The public will be admitted to the muster grounds without passes.

Medals will be awarded for company drill, on the last day of the encampment, to the two companies reported by the Division Inspector for excellence in company drill during the encampment, and for individual drill, by any non-commissioned officers or privates, the drill to be in the school of the soldier, from [illegible] inclusive, Upton's Revised Tactics, and by word of command. Amos Collins, convicted of larceny, was sentenced to two years in the State Prison

Peter Tardy and Adaline Tarrpo, indicted together for adultery, were found not guilty by the jury and discharged

P M Laughton

Wallace Maybee, indicted for an assault on Warren T Parlin at Bradley and knocking out a front tooth, was tried, and it appearing that the respondent acted in self-defense in all that he did, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. Kimball.

State vs Peter Mercer of Orono, appellant, search and seizure process, verdict "guilty" J F Godfrey

Edson D. Holmes was tried upon an indictment for the forgery of a receipt at the bottom of a bill of goods amounting to $340, from Benjamin Ball to Peltiah Woodbridge, in the following words,—

"June 16, 1872 —Received pay in full B Ball.
Witness —E D HOLMES"

The above words, excepting the signature of Holmes, were an admitted forgery

Peltiah Woodbridge, who had purchased the goods of Benj Ball, late of Corinth, now deceased, and had this bill of them, not receipted, gave testimony to the effect that Holmes, after the death of Ball, seeing the bill in Woodbridge's desk, told him there was a chance for him to make money by receipting that bill and signing Col. Ball's name to it, that he refused to do so, that afterward Holmes took the bill and wrote the forged words in a heavy hand like Col Ball's handwriting and witnessed it, that he gave it to Woodbridge, and he, tempted by the act being done for him, made entries in his account book of different sums paid at various times to Col Ball, amounting in the aggregate to the amount of the bill, that when the administrators of the estate of Col Ball called for the pay for the goods, he declared he had paid it and produced the bill, receipted, in evidence of the fact, and also showed his book charges to further corroborate the fact of payment.

Woodbridge also testified that he had sworn to this payment in a reference case before Judge Humphrey, but now says that that testimony was false and that the bill in fact has never been paid. Considerable other testimony was introduced on the part of the prosecution to corroborate this state of facts

The respondent, Holmes on his part admitting his signature as witness to be genuine, denied that he had anything to do with forging the receipt but testified that Woodbridge, as he Holmes sat writing at a table brought to him the bill, with the forged receipt already written, without his knowledge of the forgery, and said that Mr. Ball, whom he supposed to be in the other room, desired him to witness the agreement, and he, without thought or examination, affixed his name as requested. Others were present and corroborated this state of facts by their testimony.

After able and exhaustive arguments by Mr Vose for the defense, and Col. Hutchings, County Attorney, for the prosecution, and a common charge as to the law appertaining to the case, by the Court, the jury retired and after an absence of half an hour returned a verdict of not guilty, and thereupon Holmes was discharged

NEW MAGAZINES

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY for September contains an unusual number of stories. The most striking of all is Bret Harte's amusing sketch of "Wan Lee, the Pagan" Then there are stories, continued or complete, by Jules Verne, Miss Trafton, James T McKay, Constance Fennimore Woolson, Harriet Prescott Spofford, and Miss Hopkins. Mrs. Davis describes "The Pepper-Pot Woman," Mrs Burroughs writes charmingly about "Mellow England," Mr Crosby brightly about "Gastric Literature," and A. S. B says something about umbrellas Mr King's "Great South" paper deals with Alabama and Mississippi. Mr Loomis relates a striking Western incident, "A Malay Sailor running a Muck," and Mr. Richardson tells about the new Normal College in New York. Dr. Holland's Topics are "Literary Style," "The Average Prayer-Meeting," and "American Incivility" The Old Cabinet has to do with "Knight Errantry," and "Story Making." Social customs, literature, science, anecdotes and fun are represented in their separate departments Scribner & Co. New York, publishers.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY The September number of this popular magazine presents its readers with a choice freight of reading matter well adapted to the season, and which the jolly, the sedate, the ennuied or anybody may peruse with pleasure and profit. THE BLACK HILLS EXPEDITION Reports from General Custer's exploration of the Black Hills say that they prove even richer than before reported. Gold and silver is found in numerous places and in quantities so great that with a pick and pan a single miner may take out $200 per day The distance from Bismarck to the gold regions is about two hundred and fifty miles, over a practicable route The citizens of Bismarck are greatly excited, and already expeditions are organizing

The Boston Globe thinks it a remarkable and suspicious fact that the one paper of vital importance, the alleged "confession" of Mrs Tilton, was the one given up by Moulton to be destroyed. It is significant also that when Tilton extorted a second paper from her to show Dr Storrs, it did not charge adultery, but improper solicitation.

A QUEER REASON FOR VOTING AGAINST GREELEY The Montpelier, Vt., Green Mountain Freeman, tells this story of Asher Graves, of Northfield "He, no doubt, had read or heard of what Horace Greeley 'knew about farming' about raising turnips and the like. At the last Presidential election, after Greeley was fairly up the track, bound to run for the high goal, Asher took, or pretended to take, ground against his election, though very likely 'H. G.' received his vote, nevertheless, 'I'll tell you,' said Asher, [illegible] 'why I think [illegible] Greeley President. You know, one time and another, there has been a good deal of money laid out, fixing up the ground round the Capitol, President's House, &c. Now you elect Greeley President, and the old chap will go right off and plough the whole thing up and sow it all to ruta bagas'"

THE VOICELESS.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

We count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild flowers who will stoop to number?
A few can touch the magic string,
And noisy Fame is proud to win them;
Alas for those who never sing,
But die with all their music in them!

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone
Whose song has told their hearts' sad story,
Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory!
Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow,
But where the glistening night-dews weep
On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses,
Till Death pours out his cordial wine,
Slow-dropped from Misery's crushing presses,
If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured,
As sad as earth, as sweet as Heaven!

MY ONLY GHOST.

I had from childhood that low order of courage which consists in not knowing what fear is. It was an imperfection of nature which was unnecessarily lauded at the expense of my brothers and sisters, who, having a more poetical and more highly strung organization than myself, did know what fear was. But I laughed aloud when my dear friend Mrs. Morton asked me if I should be afraid to live in her beautiful house alone during the summer months. Alone so far as companionship went, but with a man and his wife to cook and wash for me, to shut up and open and protect the premises, I stand. Never mind; she gave me ample fiduciary power, she was going to Europe. [illegible] As she took me over the house [illegible] her eyes filled with tears as she essayed to open a certain door. I remembered that a misfortune had come to [illegible] grief. There was one empty chair, [illegible] eldest daughter had [illegible] wedding journey, and [illegible] brought home to be laid [illegible].

[illegible] was her daughter's room. There was her portrait on the wall. A straight young woman with a profusion of light hair, blue eyes with a far-off look, a melancholy beauty under and twilight, that face which the French call jeune fille. She was dressed in diaphanous white, with [illegible] ribbon, and her beautiful hands were clasped [illegible] what seemed to be a balcony.

[illegible] rooms were costly trifles, the [illegible] trip. The room was [illegible] with handsome [illegible] boxing gloves, fencing foils. I [illegible] Mrs. Morton for an explanation.

This suite of rooms, she explained, [illegible] given up to my son-in-law, Mr. Ayscough. During your residence here you will have an occasional visit from him. He comes [illegible] in the adjoining rooms [illegible] Gertrude's trunks, which neither he [illegible] unpacked. We [illegible] ever had the courage."

[illegible] through the spacious ante-room [illegible] to a large bed-room [illegible] many trunks. Some dresses [illegible] closets, some bottles of perfumes, [illegible] and little lady-like things [illegible] the bureau and tables. A lady might [illegible] her toilet, it seemed [illegible]. I was evident that [illegible] husband found a sad pleasure in [illegible] (with the material [illegible]) Mrs. Morton looked another [illegible]. We retraced our steps, [illegible] through the linen closet, [illegible] opening a little door, dis[illegible] staircase.

[illegible] where my children used to [illegible], said she. "These were my [illegible] days of young motherhood — [illegible] my old nursery."

[illegible] up into the large, spacious room which deserved a better name than garret, and she led me to a comfortable apartment whose windows commanded [illegible] view of the surrounding city. I [illegible] help saying what I have so often [illegible] "Why are not the disused houses of the [illegible] the summer homes of the poor?" Mrs. Morton did not seem to feel that she was [illegible] their comfortable apartments [illegible]. She only called my attention [illegible] which was now in its [illegible] Jack's bean-stalk [illegible] to the chimneys of this the [illegible]. We visited the other rooms, [illegible] plain decent furniture of an [illegible] and sensible household. There they [illegible] empty and deserted, but clean and [illegible]. We closed the blinds and windows, [illegible] our steps through [illegible] rooms, we locked the doors [illegible] the key to [illegible] Mr. Ayscough.

[illegible]

Mr. Ayscough [illegible] exclaimed, you [illegible] this valuable things [illegible] empty house [illegible] and [illegible].

[illegible] laugh, and [illegible]

[illegible] to the library [illegible] Spiritualism, which soon fascinated [illegible]

[illegible] a most robust unbeliever in me [illegible] of thought, my rough experience of life my anti-nervous temperament [illegible] against the theory and practice of Spiritualism. He went away after a few days, and I returned to my lonely life. Perhaps I was not sorry when I heard one day the unusual sound of a voice asking for me at the front door and went down to see my nephew Richard, a good young fellow from the West, who had come to the city to make his fortune, and who had found me out.

Richard was of course very anxious to see the sights of the great metropolis, so we agreed to make a tour of the amusements. I [illegible] out of an evening, perhaps three times a week. I remember being very much charmed with a pair of acrobats, a man and woman, who were entirely dependent of the laws of gravitation, and who sailed through the air in the flying trapeze with all the [illegible] and fearlessness of birds. Richard used to laugh at me as I night after night, declared in favor of the acrobats. The woman was a beautiful creature and had for me a strange and weird attraction which I could not account for, but it is unnecessary to try to account for some things. I began at this time to believe that I was growing fanciful, a thing which never had occurred before. Once or twice I had sleepless nights. I thought a great deal too much about the jewelry and silver in Mr. Ayscough's rooms, and I began to make my inspections of the house with a sort of anxiety.

One of my great pleasures particularly of a Sunday evening, had been to have Thomas light all the gas that I might see the works of art to advantage, and it gave me, too, a sense of companionship which I needed. On that evening Nancy and Thomas took their only pleasure. They went out, leaving me entirely alone. The policeman in the square had become somewhat of an acquaintance of mine, and I had provided myself with a whistle by which I could call him if necessary in these periods of utter loneliness. Sometimes as he walked under the window, I would step to the balcony and speak to him, so long as I heard his tramp, tramp, I was not utterly isolated.

One Sunday evening I was walking up and down, looking particularly at a fine Venetian picture,—a wilderness of color and action—one of those pictures of Leutze, in which a myriad of events are pictured as going on at the same time,—when my eye was irresistibly drawn toward a mirror, and I saw—good God! what did I see?—a tall, straight, female figure, covered with a profusion of light hair. I saw the dead Gertrude, stepped from her grave, the very presentment of the picture I had so often studied. She was leaning on the balusters of the grand staircase, and the image was reflected through two or three mirrors, for I could not see the stair case where I stood. She reached me by reflection!

The horror was so great that I do not know how long I looked. I am sure I saw her start to go, and I know I followed her. I lost sight of both mirror and staircase before I reached the door, but certainly I heard a door shut at the top of the stairs as I reached the lower step. It was the door of Mr. Ayscough's apartment!

The vision was gone, but two senses had been appealed to—sight and hearing. I had sense enough to open the front door, sound my whistle, and then I dropped senseless.—When I resumed my consciousness I found myself on the sofa. The private watchman was bending over me and I told him the story.

"You're a gettin a brain fever, ma'am," said he, "you're alone too much; you must try for a little more company. If you saw a woman goin' up stairs we'll soon catch her, but I guess she was here," tapping his forehead. So, summoning some of his brotherhood, we went to Mr. Ayscough's room, which we found locked, everything undisturbed, the portrait was in its accustomed place. Was it true that she had stepped from it to come and speak to me? Or, had my brain furnished that tall, white figure?

Of course it was the latter, and I did not intend to be conquered by such an illusion. I had an interview with a physician, who told me that these things are not uncommon.

"It is very natural, my dear madame," said the doctor, "that you should have invited this particular appearance, both by your having looked so much at the picture and by your after-conversations with Mr. Ayscough on Spiritualism. You did not know how much lodgment those topics had made in your brain. We never know until the time is past how a thing has taken root. Now, I advise you to leave this house and travel. Alter your course of life, and you will not be troubled by spectres."

After talking with the doctor, I determined to remain, I did not feel that this was a thing to be afraid of. My natural courage came to my relief, and I determined to stay and fight my battle on the same field. Richard returned, heard my ghost story, and was very much amused that his prosaic relative should have a vision.

I went on with my work, lived my old life, and saw no more ghosts. I knew I could conquer my nerves, if I had any, but I was very glad when Mr. Ayscough came to spend a few days.

The Actuary Portal (N. Y.) shows that the ratio of the number of policies upon which claims were paid to all companies has advanced from 10 0 per thousand in 1872 to 11 9 in 1873. In the former year the American Popular lost 1 7 and in the latter 3 7 per thousand.

The rate of death claims and of expenses to total income, and to total amount at risk, increasing rather than diminishing in the case of the aggregate companies being in both years a very large contrast strongly with the low ratio of this Company and its growing prosperity. In the light of these facts, its low premium rates are more than justified in a practical sense, as, in a scientific view, they are both equitable and secure.

Before the era of inflation in life insurance, the old plan companies are shown by the reports to have done a comparatively small business, and it was doubtless, with the large premiums they required, comparatively safe. Some, commencing later, "pushed business" from the first, with a vehemence that created amazement, and already in common with the older companies, are beginning to experience the reaction that must have been expected from the abnormal and indiscreet inflation.

The comparatively small (but really large for the kind) number of policies issued by this Company is one of the best evidences of its security—the rigid adherence to well established scientific principles, in the rating of risks, giving low premiums only to superior lives, and thus making the Company attractive to few others. It would surprise those not acquainted with the working of our plan, to know the number of applications received and the amount of labor and care expended in their examination and rating, all of which is just so much to the advantage of superior risks.

It will also be noticed that large business is not a guarantee of safety, for if the mortality is high, indicating a want of care or skill in selection, the larger the business, the more safety is imperilled; and while small business may not show care, large business does show carelessness. We could have shown a very large business from the start if we had been indifferent to the kind. But the kind is the question, and more work is necessary in doing the amount of our kind of business than would do four times as much that would be unprofitable to both the Assured and to the Company.

The increase of our business during the past year, is as wholesome and encouraging as our losses are small.

Our ratio of increase has been,
in number of Policies,	105 76
in amount of Assurance,	116 45
The ratio of all N. Y. Co.'s has been
in number of Policies,	102.92
in amount of Assurance,	102 30
